If you are running Windows 10 or 11, Microsoft recommends keeping at least 20GB of free space available on your OS (C:\). This space is needed for Microsoft to be able install feature and security updates.

If you don't have enough free space and large update is applied, it is possible that your system files could become corrupted and your system would become unusable.

We are currently offering discounts when you have the SSD or RAM upgraded in more than 1 workstation or laptop. If you are running out of space, it may be also be time to consider replacing that older system anyway.

Please call or email us at support@aerosgroup.com if you'd like discuss upgrade or replacement of your workstation before it's too late.
